

Dr. Kenneth Roy, author of the NSTA Ready-Reference Guide to Safer Science (2007) and a former chemistry and physics teacher, is currently Director of Environmental Health and Safety for Glastonbury Public Schools in Connecticut. He is also an OSHA General Industry Outreach Trainer, and consults regularly in the areas of science safety, workplace safety, and facility design. He has won several awards, including the National Science Education Leader Award in 2003 and the Connecticut State Science Education Leader Award in 2002.